

CONTENTS

Diplomatic History Volume 43, Number 3, June 2019

STUART L. BERNATH LECTURE

- From Triumph to Crisis: An American Tradition 405
by Jay Sexton

ARTICLES

- Samantha Smith in the Land of the Bolsheviks: Peace and the Politics of Childhood in the Late Cold War 418
by Margaret Peacock
- Letelier Diplomacy: Nonstate Actors and U.S.-Chilean Relations 445
by Alan McPherson
- The Kennedy Administration and Arms Transfers to Ba'athist Iraq 469
by Weldon C. Matthews
- Breaking Ranks: Robert McNamara, Adam Yarmolinsky, and the Montreal Speech 493
by Aurélie Basha i Novosejt
- The Removal of UNEF and the Limits of UN Diplomacy 517
by Bernard Firestone
- American Ottomans: Protestant Missionaries in an Islamic Empire's Service, 1820–1919 544
by Henry Gorman

BOOK REVIEWS

- An Era Beyond Closure 569
by Román de la Campa
- The Wild Bunch 572
by David Aliano
- Consuming Japan in Cold War America 575
by Hiromu Nagabara
- Boundless Sea, Naval Science, and Incipient American Empire 577
by Konstantin Dierks
- Development Politics: Seeing Past Ideas 580
by Daniel Immerwahr

(CONTINUED)

The Year it All Came Loose	583
by Patrick A. Sharma
Review of The American Elsewhere	586
by Kristin Hoganson
The Predicament of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance	589
by Christopher Capozzola
Discovering Antiviral Drugs in a Cold War World	592
by David Kinkela

LETTER TO THE EDITORS

Michael Sherry	595
----------------	-----